TROPACON 2026

Message from Organizing Chairperson, NITRD

Dear Delegates,

On behalf of the National Institute of Tuberculosis and Respiratory Diseases (NITRD), it is my privilege to welcome you all to the 20th Annual National Congress of the Indian Academy of Tropical Parasitology (IATP), TROPACON 2026. We are delighted that our institute is hosting this landmark edition of TROPACON, bringing together experts in parasitology, microbiology, infectious diseases, and public health on a single platform.

Prof. Upasna Agarwal
Organizing Chairperson

Although NITRD is primarily known as a national centre for tuberculosis and respiratory diseases, our work increasingly intersects with a broad spectrum of infectious agents, including parasites, particularly among vulnerable and high risk populations such as individuals living with HIV. Hosting TROPACON 2026 is therefore a natural extension of our commitment to comprehensive and multidisciplinary approaches to infectious disease care, training, and research. We hope that the interaction between respiratory physicians, microbiologists, and parasitologists during this conference will open new avenues for collaborative research and integrated models of patient care.

This year's scientific programme with its workshops, symposia, oral and poster sessions, and award platforms offers rich opportunities for learning and mentorship at every stage of one's career. I am particularly pleased to see a strong focus on capacity building, quality diagnostics, and innovation areas that resonate closely with our institutional priorities at NITRD. I encourage young participants to use this forum to present their work with confidence, seek constructive feedback, and build enduring professional networks.

I extend my heartfelt congratulations to the IATP and the Organizing Committee at NITRD for their diligent efforts in planning this conference. Their dedication in curating the academic programme and managing the logistics will, I am confident, ensure a smooth and productive experience for all delegates.

I warmly welcome you to NITRD and to New Delhi, and I wish you a memorable and intellectually stimulating TROPACON 2026. May the discussions and deliberations over the coming days inspire new ideas, partnerships, and solutions that ultimately benefit the patients and communities we serve.

Warm regards,

Prof. Upasna Agarwal
Director, NITRD
Organizing Chairperson, TROPACON 2026

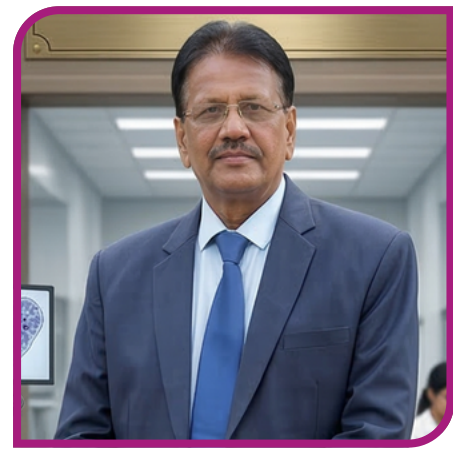

TROPACON 2026

Message from President, IATP

Dear Colleagues,

It is my great pleasure, on behalf of the Indian Academy of Tropical Parasitology (IATP), to extend a warm welcome to all delegates attending the 20th Annual National Conference of IATP, TROPACON 2026. This year's conference, being held at the National Institute of Tuberculosis and Respiratory Diseases (NITRD), brings together clinicians, medical microbiologists, parasitologists, researchers, and public health professionals from across the country, providing an excellent platform for scientific exchange, collaboration, and professional networking.

Prof. Subhash Chandra Parija
President, IATP

Over the years, TROPACON has evolved into a vibrant academic forum that addresses both enduring and emerging challenges in parasitic diseases. The scientific programme of TROPACON 2026 has been thoughtfully designed to highlight recent advances in diagnostics, therapeutics, epidemiology, and control strategies, while encouraging critical discussions on translational research and its impact on patient care and public health policy. I am confident that the deliberations, symposia, and workshops planned during this meeting will enrich our understanding and stimulate new ideas for research and innovation in tropical parasitology.

The Academy takes immense pride in nurturing young minds through dedicated academic platforms such as the "Best Thesis" presentations, quiz competitions, and various awards recognizing excellence in research and scholarly contributions. These initiatives not only celebrate outstanding work but also inspire residents, postgraduate students, and early career faculty to actively engage with the discipline.

I take this opportunity to congratulate the organizing team at NITRD, New Delhi, under the dynamic leadership of the Organizing Secretary, Dr. Ajoy Kumar Verma, Specialist, SAG & Head, Department of Microbiology, NITRD, for their untiring efforts in curating a comprehensive scientific programme and ensuring a memorable experience for all participants. I am certain that their commitment and meticulous planning will make TROPACON 2026 a resounding academic success.

I warmly invite you all to participate actively, share your experiences, and foster collaborations that will continue to strengthen the collective mission of the IATP. I wish TROPACON 2026 every success and hope that the interactions during this conference will translate into meaningful advances in parasitology and improved health outcomes for the communities we serve.
